

STORY CONTRIBUTORS

Almquist, Julika	Julka Almquist is a PhD Candidate at the University of California, Irvine in the Department of Planning, Policy and Design. Julka's current research focuses on the relationship between design, narratives, and public engagement. Her dissertation project addresses the use of mythmaking and future oriented narratives to engage the public in a long term park planning and design project.
Antonacopoulou, Elena	Elena P. Antonacopoulou is Professor of Organizational Behavior at the University of Liverpool Management School where she is Director of GNOSIS – a research initiative advancing impactful collaborative research in management and organization studies. She is published in a range of international journals on themes such as: Organizational and Management Learning, Social Practice, Complexity and Dynamic Capabilities and has been instrumental in applying the ideas of her scholarship in her leadership roles (at Board, Council, Executive and Committee level) in International Professional bodies in her field including: EGOS, AoM, EURAM, BAM, SAMS.
Balogun, Julia	Julia Balogun is the Professor Sir Roland Smith Chair of Strategic Management and Director of The Centre for Strategic Management at Lancaster University Management School. She is also a Fellow of the Advanced Institute for Management (AIM) in the UK. Her research focuses on strategy development and strategic change, renewal and transformation within the content of large, mature corporations.
Barley, Steve	Stephen R. Barley is the Richard Weiland Professor of Management Science and Engineering at Stanford University's School of Engineering. He studies technology, work, occupations and corporate political power. He co-directs the Center for Work, Technology and Organization (http://www.stanford.edu/group/WTO).
Barton, Michelle	Michelle Barton is an Assistant Professor at Boston University's School of Management. Michelle's research explores how groups organize to manage uncertainty in real time, particularly in highly dynamic contexts such as early stage technology ventures and wildland fire fighting. Her work deals with issues such as organizational awareness, mindful organizing and experiential learning.
Bechky, Beth	Beth Bechky is associate professor of management at the Graduate School of Management at the University of California, Davis. Beth's research focuses on the interaction order of the workplace; she is interested in how complex technical work is accomplished. She is currently investigating the work and culture of a crime laboratory.
Bjørkeng, Kjersti	Kjersti Bjørkeng is a Senior Researcher at SINTEF Technology and Society and a core member of the Centre og Management Studies and Research at the University of Technology, Sydney. Combining process philosophy and practice based studies Kjersti dwells into the mechanisms of change and stability in organization, focusing particularly on the interplay of agency and structure.
Carlsen, Arne	Arne Carlsen is Senior Scientist at SINTEF Technology and Society and is doing a Post Doc at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology, Department for Interdisciplinary Studies of Culture. Arne's research deals with issues of individual and collective growth in organizations, currently focused on hope, wonder, identity and 'idea work'.
Christianson, Marlys	Marlys Christianson is an Assistant Professor of Organizational Behaviour at the Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto. She studies how people work together in high-risk environments (like the emergency department) to effectively update their understanding of changing situations, particularly with respect to how they notice and correct errors.

Clegg, Stewart	Stewart Clegg is Research Professor and Director of the Centre for Management and Organization Studies Research at the University of Technology, Sydney and he is also a Visiting Professor at Copenhagen Business School and EM-Lyon. A prolific publisher in leading academic journals in social science, management and organization theory, he is also the author and editor of many books, including the following volumes: Handbook of Power (with Mark Haugaard 2009), Handbook of Macro-Organization Behaviour (with Cary Cooper 2009), and Handbook of Organization Studies (with Cynthia Hardy, Walter Nord and Tom Lawrence, 2006).
Coldevin Håkonsen, Grete	Grete H. Coldevin holds a Ph.D from Dep. of Interdisciplinary Studies of Culture at the Norwegian University of Science and Technology and is a former Senior Scientist at SINTEF Technology and Society. At the present Grete is a Senior Advisor at the Norwegian Research Council where she manages the funding of social science research on renewable energy.
Cotton, Natalie	Natalie C. Cotton is a doctoral candidate in Sociology and Management & Organizations at the Ross School of Business, University of Michigan. Natalie studies the role of culture in social networks and the micro dynamics of network processes.
Czarniawska, Barbara	Barbara Czarniawska holds a Chair in Management Studies at GRI, School of Business, Economics and Law at University of Gothenburg, Sweden. She takes a feminist and constructionist perspective on organizing, recently exploring the connections between popular culture and practice of management, and the organization of the news production. She is also interested in methodology, especially in techniques of fieldwork and in the application of narratology to organization studies.
Decelles, Katy	Katherine DeCelles is an Assistant Professor of Organizational Behavior at the Rotman School of Management at the University of Toronto. Katherine's research focuses on social issues and change, and most recently she has been exploring emotions, attitudes and change in the context of environmentalism.
Dutton, Jane	Jane Dutton is the Robert L. Kahn Distinguished University Professor at the Ross School of Business, University of Michigan, USA. Jane's current research focuses on compassion and organizations, job crafting, positive identities and high quality connections at work. She currently co-directs the Center for Positive Organizational Scholarship. (http://www.bus.umich.edu/Positive/)
Elsbach, Kimberly	Kimberly D. Elsbach is Professor of Management and Stephen G. Newberry Chair in Leadership at the Graduate School of Management, University of California, Davis. Kim's research focuses on the perception and management of individual and organizational images, identities, and reputations.
Ely, Robin	Robin Ely is Warren Alpert Professor of Business Administration at Harvard Business School. Her research focuses on race and gender relations in organizations. She has recently completed a study of men and masculinity on offshore oil platforms and is now conducting research on women's leadership in professional service firms. Robin currently serves as an associate editor for Administrative Science Quarterly.
Farkas, Maria	Maria Farkas is a doctoral candidate in Sociology and Management & Organizations at the Ross School of Business, University of Michigan. Maria's research looks at the micro-processes of institutionalization, focusing on field emergence and social categories.
Feldman, Martha	Martha S. Feldman is the Roger and Janice Johnson Chair for Civic Governance and Public Management in the Planning, Policy and Design Department, School of Social Ecology, University of California, Irvine. Martha's current research focuses on the generative potential of organizational routines, the inclusive potential of public engagement and the creative potential of qualitative research. She currently co-directs the Center for Organizational Research (http://www.cor.web.uci.edu/) and is a Senior Editor for Organization Science.

Glynn, Mary Ann	Mary Ann Glynn is the Joseph F. Cotter Professor of Organization Studies at the Carroll School of Business, Boston College, USA. Mary Ann's current research focuses on organizational identity, institutional dynamics, and leadership, and how these are shaped by micro-level cognitive processes and macro-level cultural influences. She currently serves as the Research Director for the Winston Center on Leadership and Ethics at Boston College.
Golden-Biddle, Karen	Karen Golden-Biddle is Professor and Everett W. Lord Distinguished Faculty Scholar at the Boston University School of Management. Karen's current research concerns the collective creation of organizational and system change, especially in the health sector; cultural dynamics in change; and theorizing processes in doing fieldwork.
Haigh, Nardia	Nardia Haigh is an Assistant Professor of Management in the College of Management at the University of Massachusetts Boston. Nardia's current research focuses on organizational responses to large-scale sustainability issues, such as those associated with climate change and the rejuvenation of environmental commons.
Hemphill, Libby	Libby Hemphill is an Assistant Professor of Technical Communication at the Illinois Institute of Technology. Libby's research explores how individuals come to understand and feel a part of the organizations and communities they join. She is currently focused on how individuals and organizations leverage technology and social networks during these joining activities.
Johnson, Victoria	Victoria Johnson is an assistant professor of Organizational Studies at the University of Michigan. Her research investigates the effect of organizations' pasts on their subsequent trajectories. Her current work focuses on these processes in the empirical setting of botanical gardens.
Kahn, Farzid R.	Farzad Rafi Khan graduated with a PhD in Strategy and Organization from McGill University in 2005. He is currently an Assistant Professor at the Suleman Dawood School of Business, Lahore University of Management Sciences, Pakistan. His research interests center on exploring state capitalism and imperialism, impacts of organizations on society, critical approaches to management, and Islamic business ethics.
Landsverk Hagen, Aina	Aina Landsverk Hagen is Scientist at SINTEF Technology and Society and is currently doing a PhD at the University of Oslo, Departement of Social Anthropology. Aina's research deals with issues of creativity and collaborative idea processes in organizations, focusing mainly on imagination, gender, dis/engagement and physicality in an internationally recognized architect company.
Laura Morgan Roberts	Laura Morgan Roberts, Professor of Psychology, Culture and Organization Studies, is a core faculty member of Antioch University's Ph.D. in Leadership and Change Program. Laura's research focuses on pathways for constructing, sustaining and restoring positive identities at work. She writes about the intersections of identity and diversity, authenticity, strengths, relationships and value creation at work.
Maitlis, Sally	Sally Maitlis is an Associate Professor of Organizational Behavior at the Sauder School of Business, University of British Columbia, in Vancouver, Canada. Her research explores sensemaking and emotion in organizations, . currently through a study of post-trauma sensemaking and identity in the life narratives of injured musicians and dancers.
Mantere, Saku	Saku Mantere is Professor of Management and Organization, Hanken School of Economics Saku's research is focused on what makes organizations strategic and how strategic management affects organizations. He is particularly interested in strategic change, middle management agency and strategy discourse.

Mathiessen, Jane and Jarzabkowski, Paula	Jane Lê is a Lecturer in Strategic Management at Aston Business School (UK). Jane studies organisational processes and practices in complex dynamic organisations over time. Using a strategy-as-practice lens, she conducts research on diverse topics including organisational change, pluralism, conflict, humour and emotions in organisations.
	Paula Jarzabkowski is a Professor of Strategic Management at Aston Business School and an Advanced Institute of Management (AIM) Ghoshal Fellow. Her research focuses on the social practices of strategy-making, particularly in pluralistic organisational contexts which are beset by contradictory and competing strategic demands. She is currently completing a video-ethnography comparing the socio-material practices of placing high-stakes, high-value reinsurance risks in different international markets.
Mortensen, Tord	Tord F. Mortensen is a psychologist and Research Fellow at SINTEF Technology and Society. Tord is a PhD candidate at the University of Oslo, Department of Psychology. Currently he is a visiting scholar at the University of California, Berkeley, Department of Sociology. Tord's research focuses on idea work high on imagination and visual representations.
Perlow, Leslie	Leslie Perlow is the Konosuke Matsushita Professor of Leadership at the Harvard Business School, USA. Leslie's research focuses on the micro dynamics of work time and the implications for work and life outside.
Pitsis, Tyrone	Tyrone S. Pitsis is a Director of the Centre for Management & Organization Studies at the University of Technology, Sydney. He has a PhD in Management, and an honours degree in social science (Psychology). His research interests are in the generative aspects of inter-organizational collaboration, particularly around innovation in managerial and leadership practice.
Pratt, Mike	Michael G. Pratt is a professor of Organizational Studies at the Carroll School of Management, and a Winston Center for Ethics and Leadership Fellow, at Boston College. Mike's current research focuses on identity, ambivalence, meaningful work, and qualitative methods. He is also the inaugural qualitative methods associate editor at the Academy of Management Journal.
Rhodes, Carl	Carl Rhodes is Professor of Organization Studies at Swansea University, UK. His research focuses on critically interrogating the narration and representation of organizational experience in practice and popular culture, with a particular concern with the possibilities for organizational ethics and responsibility. Carl's most recent books are Bits of Organization (Liber, 2009 co-edited with Alison Pullen) and Critical Representations of Work and Organization in Popular Culture (Routledge, 2008 co-authored with Robert Westwood).
Stephens, John Paul	John Paul Stephens is an Assistant Professor in the Organizational Behavior Department in the Weatherhead School of Management at Case Western University, in Cleveland, Ohio, USA. John Paul hopes that his research on beauty in organizing will lead to deeper understandings about the role of aesthetics and organizational knowledge in the performance of coordination.
Tsoukas, Hari	Haridimos Tsoukas holds the Columbia Ship Management Chair in Strategic Management, University of Cyprus, Cyprus and is a Professor of Organization Studies, University of Warwick, UK. His current research interests include: organizational knowledge and learning, organizational becoming, and the epistemology of practice.
Valikangas, Liisa	Liisa Välikangas is professor of innovation management at Aalto University in Helsinki, Finland and a co-founder of Innovation Democracy, Inc., a California-based nonprofit seeking to support innovation and entrepreneurship in extreme conditions. Her research deals with organizational strategies for innovation and serendipitous strategy making. She is an author of a recent book "The Resilient Organization, How Adaptive Cultures Thrive Even When Strategy Fails", McGraw-Hill, 2010.

Von Krogh, Georg	Georg von Krogh is a chaired professor of strategic management and innovation at ETH Zurich's Department of Management, Technology, and Economics. He has published articles and books on strategic management, knowledge and innovation management, and organization and management theory. Prof. von Krogh has conducted research in various industries including financial services, media, computer software and hardware, life -sciences, and consumer goods.
Weick, Karl	Karl E. Weick is the Rensis Likert Distinguished University Professor of Organizational Behavior and Psychology, and Professor of Psychology at the University of Michigan. He joined the Michigan faculty in 1988 after previous faculty positions at the University of Texas, Cornell University, University of Minnesota, and Purdue University. Dr. Weick's research interests include collective sensemaking under pressure, medical errors, handoffs and transitions in dynamic events, high reliability performance, and improvisation. He is the author of books such as "Sensemaking in organizations" and "Social Psychology of Organizing" and also co-author with Kathleen Sutcliffe of two editions of "Managing the unexpected."

COMMENTARY CONTRIBUTORS

Cunliffe, Ann	Ann L Cunliffe is ASM Alumni Professor at the University of New Mexico, and Visiting Professor at the UK Universities of Hull, Leeds and Strathclyde. Ann's current research interests address reflexive and ethical practice, leadership, identity, and narrative and embodied ways of knowing. She is currently Editor-in-Chief of Management Learning and organizer of the biennial Qualitative Research in Management Conference.
Martin, Joanne	Joanne Martin is the Fred H. Merrill Professor of Organizational Behavior, Emerita, at the Graduate School of Business, Stanford University. Her current research explores intersections of gender inequality and culture. Recent papers ask whether gender inequality ever disappears (or does it just return in another form); what kinds of government or organizational interventions have lasting impacts on gender inequities; and how political and economic interests shape methods choices in the study of cultures.
Morrill, Calvin	Calvin Morrill is Professor of Law and Sociology at the University of California, Berkeley. Cal's current research focuses on social conflict, youth culture, and rights in urban schools; and social movements in organizations, fields, and institutions. He currently directs the Center for the Study of Law and Society (http://www.law.berkeley.edu/csls.htm).