

POSITIVE ORGANIZATIONS CONSORTIUM

WHAT IS THE POSITIVE ORGANIZATIONS CONSORTIUM?

The Center for Positive Organizations created the Positive Organizations Consortium to bridge the gap between the research and the implementation of positive business principles.

The Consortium is a peer-to-peer learning and networking cooperative designed to enhance the business effectiveness and sustainability of positive organizational change. The Consortium unites researchers and organizational change leaders in the quest to build a better working world where employees are healthier, more engaged, and more loyal and the company has increased financial success.

KEY AREAS OF FOCUS INCLUDE

- Employee engagement and retention
- Positive leadership
- Learning and development
- Positive relationships, meaning, and purpose
- Making the business case for positive organizations

CENTER FOR POSITIVE ORGANIZATIONS

Housed at the University of Michigan's Stephen M. Ross School of Business, the Center for Positive Organizations is a world-class research center focused on the leadership, strategies, systems, culture, and practices of high-performing organizations that enable people to be their best selves in the workplace.

Michigan Ross is working to redefine business as a place of purpose, contribution, and growth—for individuals and society. That belief in the power of business as a force for positive change in the world is reflected here at the Center.

MEMBERSHIP

Details

- Biannual in-person events for three (3) people from member organizations
- Regular webinars and research-focused events for up to ten (10) organizational participants

Benefits

In this exclusive peer network, members inspire one another, spur new action, and share research and resources. Members also:

- Collaborate with other industry leaders at private member meetings and within member-driven working groups.
- Learn how others are applying the research concepts in ways that improve business performance.
- Get priority access to cutting-edge research linking positive practices to organizational resilience, innovation, and growth.
- Participate in new research projects or initiate custom research with Center for Positive Organizations faculty designed to promote evidence-based HR practices.
- Build relationships with students with an expressed interest in Positive Organizational Scholarship.
- Receive tuition discounts on select Michigan Ross Executive Education programs, such as “Becoming a Positive Leader.”

RATES

Rates vary based on company revenue and type. For companies that make:

Under $100MM revenues/year:

- $5,000 per year

$100-500MM revenues/year:

- $10,000 per year

Over $500MM in revenues/year:

- $15,000 per year

LEARN MORE

To learn more about the Consortium, visit:

positiveorgs.bus.umich.edu/consortium

To explore Positive Organizations Consortium membership, contact:

Hitomi Katsumi

Corporate Relations and Communications Specialist

T: 734 764-2808

hkat@umich.edu

Center for Positive Organizations

Stephen M. Ross School of Business
University of Michigan

701 Tappan St.

Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-1234

T: 734 647-8154